Humber and North Yorkshire ICB Update

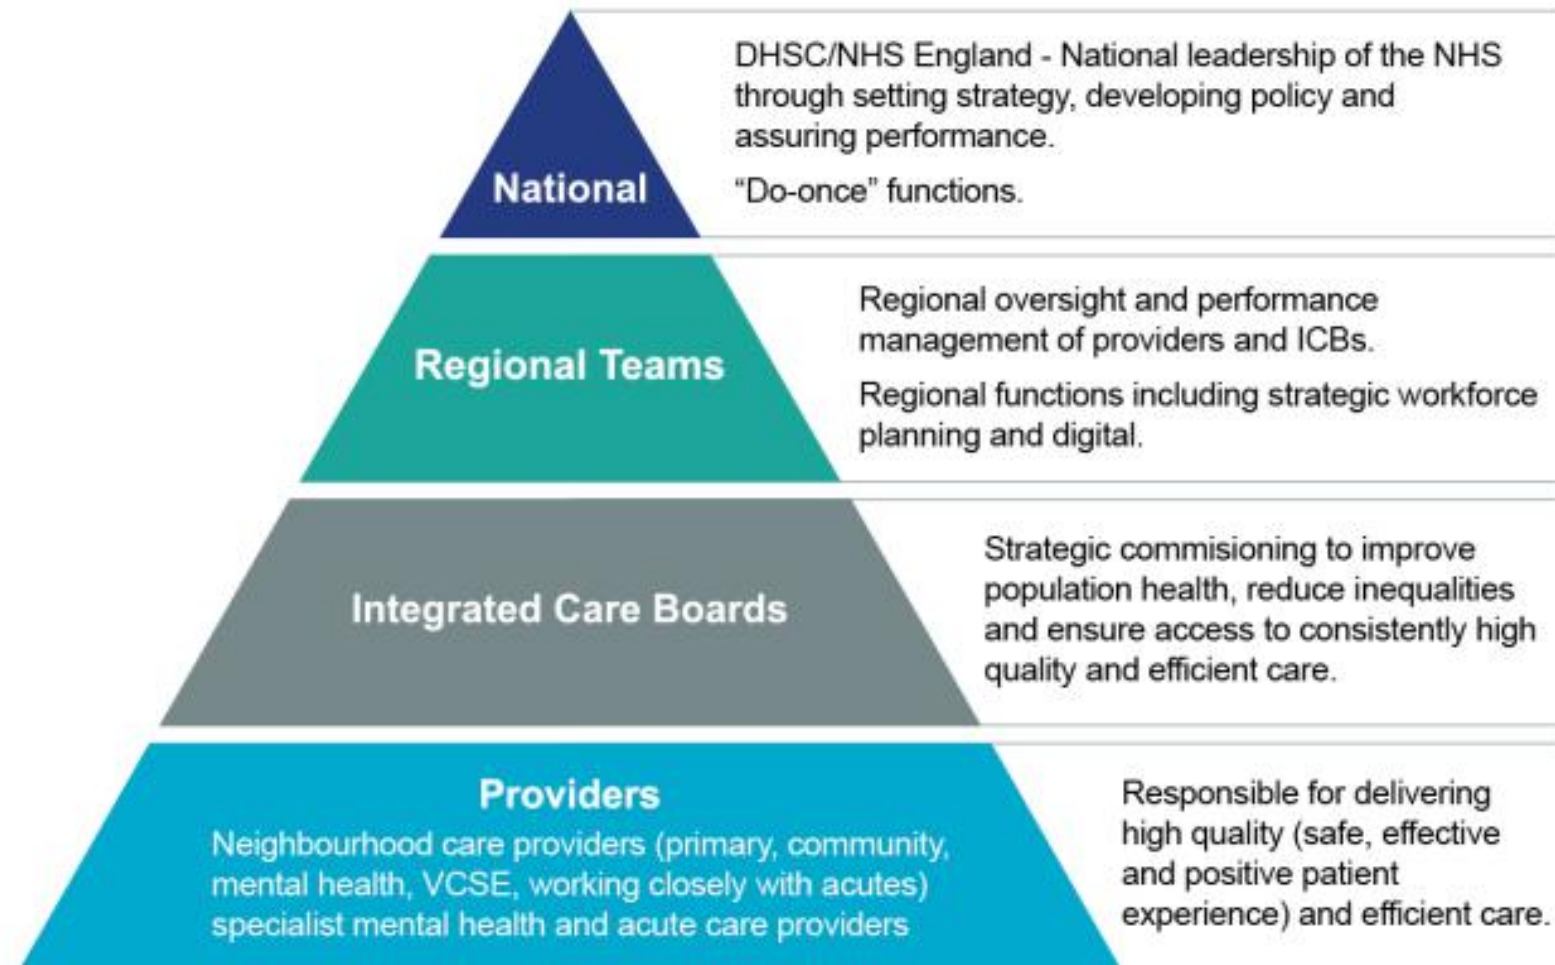

7th May 2025

2. Purpose and role: why ICBs exist

ICBs exist to improve their population's health and ensure access to consistently high-quality services. They hold the accountability for ensuring the best use of their population's health budget to improve health and healthcare, both now and in the future.

ICBs provide system leadership for population health, setting evidence based and long-term population health strategy and working as healthcare payers to deliver this, maximising the value that can be created from the available resources. This involves investing in, purchasing and evaluating the range of services and pathways required to ensure access to high quality care, and in order to improve outcomes and reduce inequalities within their footprint. ICBs not only commission services but also align funding and resources strategically with long-term population health outcomes and manage clinical and financial risks.

The refreshed role of ICBs has been developed through a set of assumptions about a refreshed system landscape, along the lines set out below:

Place-Based Partnerships:

- Purpose:

- To create more integrated and proactive care for people in specific geographic areas.

- Membership:

- These partnerships include organizations like NHS trusts, commissioners, local authorities, primary care services, voluntary and community sector organizations, and even wider partners like housing or education providers.

- Role in ICSs:

- "Places" play a key role within Integrated Care Systems (ICSs).

- Budget and Functions:

- Following the Health and Care Act (2022), Integrated Care Boards (ICBs) can delegate budgets and functions to "places".

- Flexibility:

- Unlike ICSs, place-based partnerships are not statutory bodies, allowing for local areas to determine their specific form and functions.

- Localized Arrangements:

- Within places, even more localized arrangements are being established around "neighbourhoods" to further improve care

Why

Help us make a difference

With 77,030 residents aged over 50 in York, our goal is to highlight the evolving and diverse experience of growing older

Ageism is a significant and widespread issue with nearly half of people over 50 in England experiencing age discrimination.

The Festival seeks to dispel ageist stereotypes, highlight the diverse experiences of older people in York, enhance wellbeing and enjoyment, and foster intergenerational understanding and links.
